

TORY CABINET IS 'NOW IN SADDLE'

King Praises Retiring
Ministers; Urges New Ones to "Carry On"

DISSOLVE PARLIAMENT

"Die Hard" Element of Tories
Vexed Because Only One
Named by Bonar Law

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Great Britain's new Tory cabinet, headed by Andrew Bonar Law, formally took office today and began to function. At the same time the privy council issued a proclamation dissolving parliament, thus paving the way for a general election on November 15.

Ministers of the old and the new cabinets went to Buckingham palace this morning where they were cordially greeted by King George. The old ministers turned over their seals of office to the new ministers. The ceremony was officially accepted. This ceremony officially placed the Law cabinet in power. After the king had congratulated the new ministers upon their faithful service and expressed the hope that the new cabinet would be successful in solving problems confronting the nation, the audience ended.

King Returns to Vacation.
King George, who was called to London by the cabinet crisis last week, plans to return to Sandringham estate this evening to complete his holiday.

The fact that about half the members of the new cabinet are new is causing considerable criticism, especially among the laborites, who helped the Tories overthrow the Lloyd George ministry.

"The Tory 'die hards' who originated the fight against Lloyd George in the house of commons, did not get much satisfaction for their pains," said one Tory "die-hard" in the new cabinet—Lord Salisbury—who succeeded Earl Balfour as lord minister of the council.

Lord Curzon retains his portfolio as foreign secretary.

"The new ministry is one which wins the confidence of the country," commented the Daily Express, the official mouthpiece of the new premier.

The Daily Mail complains that many of the new ministers were among those responsible for Lloyd George's near east policy. The paper added:

"Premier Law has not yet given hope of abandoning the old policy."

NAB ALLEGED MOONSHINER

Bartlesville Man Charged With Running Hooch Still

An information filed with United States Commissioner D. F. Gore yesterday morning charges James Harmon with operating a hooch still near Bartlesville. Harmon was arrested late Tuesday when federal officers raided his moonshining plant on a farm near the Washington county metropolis. The officers seized a 150-gallon still, one gallon of corn liquor and 16 gallons of "hooch" beer. Harmon pleaded not guilty and was held under a $1,000 bond for the federal grand jury after he had waived preliminary trial.

Federal officers late Tuesday night arrested N. J. Griffith, near Sapulpa, with six barrels of corn mash. He entered a plea of not guilty yesterday at his arraignment and was placed under a $1,000 bond pending preliminary trial, which was set for October 31.

Want Equal Representation.
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—A 50-50 representation of men and women in the state legislature and the national congress is the goal to which women should strive, Anne Martin, of Nevada, well-known suffragist and one-time senatorial candidate declared here today.

According to tests of the United States bureau of standards the rate of heating a piece of metal for hardening has an effect on its final dimensions.

Gen. Ludendorff Predicts German-French Alliance

PARIS.—Economic alliance between France and Germany and the disappearance of all hostility between the two peoples—General Ludendorff, now 54 years old, hopes to see it come as quickly as possible and expects to see it before his death.

"I am convinced that if one could make the German people look forward to a different sort of future, based on the important interests which they have in common with France, Germany could work in accord with France for the re-establishment of Europe and the greater good of both countries," he told a special correspondent of the Echo de Paris, who interviewed him at his villa near Munich.

The correspondent found the former warrior engaged in reading his hobby, that is to say, tending his fancy race horses.

"It is believed in France that secret military preparations are being made by private German organizations against France. What does your excellency think of this subject?" the correspondent asked.

"I have said publicly before," was the answer, "that all arms and war material have been taken away from Germany, that Germany's war industries have been destroyed. Therefore a German war against France would be a suicidal war, abundantly prepared with every possible modern method of warfare. It is a thing not even to be thought of, at least for a long time."

"To me it is absolutely incomprehensible how anyone in France can fear German organizations, which, when they exist, exist only to protect Germany against a Bolshevik revolution."

"How, then, do you interpret, General, the sentiment of hate against France which seems to grow and grow among the German people?"

"It is true," Ludendorff replied, "that since the end of the war animosity to France has grown considerably. But I believe the cause of it is to be found in French policy."

"History shows that war is a nasty job and that the lot of the vanquished is bitter. During and after the conclusion of peace France imposed on the empire drastic conditions incapable of being executed which measure the very existence of the German people. French policy has outrageously wounded the national pride of the German people and it is not strange that German patriots are soured by these proceedings."

"France sees a menace in the re-establishment of a patriotic spirit in Germany. For this reason France believes herself justified in imposing harder and harder measures on the German people; these measures augment anew German animosity against France."

"I am certain that if France finally realizes that the policy of oppressing Germany is leading both nations to ruin, she will sooner or later change her policy."

It was at this point that the general made his prophecy that the two peoples must and will become allies to safeguard their common interests.

He returns to Tulsa Friday and Friday night a dinner will be given for him at the high school at which a group of business men representative of all of Tulsa's various commercial interests will confer with him relative to the educational situation here.

REFUGEES SLAIN BY TURK TROOPS

Irregulars Blamed for Fresh Horrors in the Near East

ATHENS, Oct. 25.—Attacks by roving bands of Turkish irregulars today are adding fresh horrors to the already horrible scene of agony which is sweeping the vast borders of Greece and Armenian refugees who are crowding Thracian ports imploring the Greek and allied authorities to get them to safety.

Prompt evacuation by the fugitive Christians is being prevented by these attacks.

Twining to famine conditions in Greece and the inability of the government to feed the refugees, the National bank of Greece has extended a loan of 10,000,000 drachmas to buy food.

LUTHERAN CHURCH IS 3RD

Faces Outlook Unparalleled in History, Says Pastor

The Lutheran church is facing an outlook unparalleled in its history, so the Tulsa congregation is informed by the Reverend Doctor Kaufman, its pastor, who is attending the biennial national convention of the United Lutheran church in Buffalo, N. Y. Reverend Kaufman is expected home the latter part of the week.

The convention is holding a 10-day session. International as well as national problems are being considered and the fact is pointed out that the Lutheran church is now equal to about the half of Protestant Christianity in the world. The Lutheran church stands third, it is said, in numbers among the Protestant churches of America.

Food Exports Fall Off.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Exports of food and food products last month showed a falling off in value as compared with September, 1921. Figures made public today by the commerce department placed the value last month at $74,366,253 as against $94,254,758 the same month the year before.

Don't Shy at Camera! It's Only H. S. Class Getting Tulsa Views

There has been a lot of shooting going on in the downtown district the past week. The weapons are cameras and the shooters are sophomores from Central high school.

The boys in Miss Adah Robinson's classes in civic appreciation are having their study this year upon Tulsa. Tulsa streets, Tulsa buildings, Tulsa parks, Tulsa lighting, all are to be used as examples of how or how not to do it.

Miss Robinson, who is director of the art department, is going to take Tulsa as it is, and apply thereto certain rules and principles of architecture and city building, thus learning to distinguish between good and bad. Accomplishment of city plan commissions, such as that recently created here, will be used as a basis for study.

The business blocks are the first to be studied. The boys this week are taking pictures of buildings and of groups of buildings and from the prints the potential changes will be made that would make of Tulsa a model city.

"And there is one thing that we are sure going to do," said Miss Robinson yesterday. "We are going to make provision for lots of parking space so that people can park their cars and go to the theater all in one evening if they want to."

MOVIE DIRECTOR CLEARED BY JURY

Jurors Deliberated Just
160 Minutes Before
Freeing Slayer

HACKENSACK, N. J., Oct. 25.—George Cline, a motion picture director, was acquitted this afternoon of the murder of Jack Bergin, a motion picture actor, who was shot to death in Cline's home at Edgewater, N. J., last August. Miss Alice Thornton and Charles Scullion, brother-in-law of Cline, who were tried as accessories, also were acquitted.

The jury was out 2 hours and 40 minutes. The trial of Cline and his co-defendants was one of the shortest on record in New Jersey courts. The entire case required less than three full court days for trial.

Cline's defense was that he had shot Bergin during a struggle for possession of an automatic pistol after Bergin had admitted illicit relations with Mrs. Cline.

When it was announced that the jury had reached a verdict and the three defendants were brought into court, Justice Parker warned spectators against any demonstration threatening punishment of offenders for contempt.

ASKS $35,000 FOR SLANDER

A. L. Golins, Stock Farmer, Sues
Amos Partridge.

Alleging that his reputation for honesty and integrity had been willfully and maliciously defamed by Amos Partridge, A. L. Golins, stock farmer living near Sand Springs yesterday filed a suit in district court asking $35,000 damages for slander.

Golins set out in his petition that Partridge pictured him as a crook and a cheat to O. L. Stewart, Sand Springs banker, June 1 of this year. Partridge, it is alleged, told Stewart that he better sell the stock and other belongings of Golins if he wished to insure his paper, as Golins was a crook and cheat.

This alleged statement, Golins says is not the truth and was made for a malicious purpose. He says it damaged his credit and his good reputation for honesty.
